

Czechs Putting Ban on Travel Now in Strife-Torn Slovakia

Bloody Riots Take Place Between Catholics and Red Officials

Prague, Czechoslovakia, July 2 (AP)—Foreign diplomats have been warned by the government not to make any unannounced trips into Slovakia, scene of bloody rioting between Roman Catholics and Communist officials.

The foreign ministry said it would be a "demonstrative" act against the Czech government "and gross interference with internal affairs of Czechoslovakia" for foreign diplomats to travel into Slovakia without prior notice.

This new ban—against western diplomats at least—was disclosed in the foreign ministry's rejection of a diplomatic protest against police detention of Mgr. Gennaro Verolino, charge d'affaires of the Papal nunciature in Prague.

The announcement said "present circumstances" in the strong pro-Catholic eastern province made the restrictions necessary.

Informed church and diplomatic sources said last night that at least two Communist policemen were beaten to death and an undetermined number of persons injured during recent clashes in Slovakia between Catholics and government adherents.

Take Over Holidays

Meanwhile the Communist government moved to take over the big national religious holidays which start today and extend through Tuesday.

They will be marked by Catholic pilgrimages and celebrations honoring the "martyrs," Sts. Cyril and Methodius, and the monk, St. Prokop.

On July 4 the nation also marks the burning at the stake of the religious reformer, John Hus, in 1415. This holiday has been moved up from July 6 to make a compact week-end and save a working day for the "people's democracy."

Thousands of Communist adherents will be making the pilgrimage to Stranice, Moravia, today and tomorrow. There they will hear an address by the Rev. Josef Flajhar, a priest who is health minister in the Communist government.

Tomorrow at St. Prokop, the government will offer another program at which the Communist education minister, Prof. Zdenek Nejedly, will be the main speaker. Nejedly's ministry has been closing down Catholic monasteries, suppressing the religious press, and otherwise enforcing restrictions upon the church.

Free Fares for Reds

Prague informants said Red headquarters had passed out money to pay the fares of their adherents to the pilgrimage spots.

The idea, apparently was to make a good showing for the Communist-sponsored Catholic Action movement which advocates church-state peace on government terms and disavows the hierarchy led by Archbishop Josef Bern.

Verolino's case is believed to have set a precedent restricting travel of foreign envoys here.

Therefore there have been patrols on roads between Slovakia and Bohemia-Moravia, but usually cars with diplomatic or foreign license plates were waved through.

The government claimed Verolino had no right to claim violation of diplomatic rights because he "twice disregarded challenges of traffic police to halt" while in Slovakia. It added he had no right there anyway because he had failed to give the ministry prior notice of the trip.

The nunciature called the ministry's claim "absolutely false." It said armed men entered Verolino's car, forced him to drive to the police station where officers tried to question him.

Will Speak Here On Constitution

Edward F. Hutton, nationally known investment banker, who will address the service clubs of this city on Tuesday, July 5 at the Governor's Clinton Hotel is the founder of Freedom's Foundation, which aims to build and create an understanding of the spirit of the philosophy of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, to inspire love of freedom and to inform and enlighten the American people to a better understanding of their individual responsibility in this republic.

In cooperation with the Advertising Agencies of America, Mr. Hutton has printed leaflets on the importance of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, which in part read:

Stadium Fireworks Plan Ready for 4th

Hour Display Will Follow Ball Game; Colonial Boosters Sponsors

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk reported this morning that final arrangements have been completed for the fireworks display to be held at Kingston Municipal Stadium Monday night following the baseball game between the Colonials and the Poughkeepsie Chiefs.

Permission to display the fireworks was granted today by Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy in accordance with regulations governing such displays. A licensed technician will be in charge of setting off the many large pieces. The display will last approximately one hour and will begin at the conclusion of the ball game.

Monday will be the first time that a fireworks display has ever been given in the municipal stadium, Chief Murphy said. The display is sponsored by the newly formed Colonial Booster Club as a part of its program to promote Kingston's professional baseball club.

President Cruises

Washington, July 2 (AP)—President Truman embarked on the yacht Williamsburg at 9:48 a. m., E.S.T., today for a three-day holiday week-end cruise in nearby waters. He will return Monday evening.

Wants Public Works Plan Ready as Economy Drifts

Washington, July 2 (AP)—Senator Murray (D-Mont.) urged today a conference of labor leaders, business men, farmers and consumers to take a searching look at the drift of the nation's economy.

The Montana senator told a reporter he hopes to obtain action in this session of Congress on a bill he and seven other Democrats are sponsoring to direct the planning of a $35,000,000 public works program.

"We ought to have a program of this kind on the shelf, ready for use if we need it," he said.

The Murray bill, which so far has no official administration backing, would set up a National Economic Cooperation Board to bring together representatives of labor, business, farm and consumer to recommend economic expansion.

The President would be authorized to point out certain industries that need expansion. Among those mentioned in this field have been steel, freight cars, iron and other ores, synthetic fuels, electric power, fertilizers and newsprint.

Murray emphasized the government would not go into business under his proposal. He said it would speed up paying off the cost of new plants, provide busi-

Regarded as Top Leader of Communists Outside Russia; Death Is Due to Diabetes

London, July 2 (AP)—Georgi Mikhailovich Dimitrov, premier of Bulgaria and one of the foremost leaders in world communism, died today, Moscow radio announced. He was 67.

He had been a lifelong revolutionary, an exile, trusted agent of Soviet Prime Minister Joseph Stalin, a principal defendant in the German Reichstag fire trial in 1933, and probably the most important Communist outside Russia.

The announcement distributed by the Soviet monitor here said death was due to diabetes. Dimitrov had been under treatment in Bordikha Sanatorium near Moscow for nearly three months.

He was granted leave from the premiership in April to obtain the treatment. Vassil Kolarov, vice-premier and foreign minister, became acting premier at that time.

The highest councils in Russia, the Central Committee of the Soviet Communist Party and the Ministers of the U.S.S.R., made the announcement of death.

Reds Are Grieved

They said it caused them profound grief.

Dimitrov was an exile from Bulgaria for 22 years because of his early revolutionary life but he remained an obscure figure until he was accused of engineering the Reichstag fire conspiracy.

Hot 4th Predicted For Empire State

Albany, N. Y., July 2 (AP)—It'll be a hot Fourth in New York state, even without firecrackers.

That's what the weatherman predicted, as urbanites fled to the country for the holiday week-end and country folk just mopped their brows.

The Weather Bureau said today, tomorrow and Monday would be generally sunny, with temperatures in the high eighties and low nineties. The highest temperature reported to the bureau yesterday was Danville's 93.

There was just a chance of a few widely scattered showers this afternoon in western New York.

Summer Schools To Open July 6th

Information on Courses Available at Office in High School

Summer sessions for high school and grade pupils are scheduled to open Tuesday, July 5 according to an announcement today from the board of education.

The first day will be for registration, and studies will start on Wednesday, July 6, Theron Culver, principal for the summer courses, said. No registrations will be accepted after July 7.

Those taking the high school courses will register at Kingston High School at 8:30 a. m., also eighth grade elementary pupils who failed regents or school examinations in not more than two subjects.

There will be sessions every school day, including Saturday, July 9, from 8:30 a. m. to 12 noon, from the sixth of this month to August 24.

Elementary pupils in grades one to seven who failed to be promoted, went ahead on probation or recommended for summer school by teachers or principals will register at School No. 5 at 8:30 a. m.

Classes will be held every school day from 8:30 a. m. to 11:30 a. m.

Subjects to be taught in the summer schools are listed at the office of the board of education where all information may be obtained relative to courses.

The summer high school is intended for the following pupils: Candidates for entrance to college; pupils repeating work in which they have failed; pupils of exceptional ability who wish to shorten their high school course; and veterans who wish to complete high school courses.

Due to the fact that year courses are started only in September, it will be impossible for students to take the first half of these courses during the summer. Any one who elects to take a beginning subject must also take the end work to complete the whole year's work during the summer.

All pupils from schools outside of Kingston should have the recommendation of their guidance counselor or principal to take certain subjects. They must also be certain that the courses in English and social studies will be acceptable at their "home school" and that these courses will integrate with their schedules.

There will be no tuition charge for high school pupils whose parents live within the boundaries of the City of Kingston. Tuition for non-residents will be $10 per subject, payable at the beginning of the second week. There will be no refund if the student withdraws.

W. C. Rose Dies

William C. Rose, 80, died this morning in Ellenville. He was the senior member of the plumb line firm of Rose and Douglas in that village, a vice president of the Home National Bank and a member and trustee of the Ellenville Methodist Church. He was a brother of the late Graham Rose of Kingston. Funeral arrangements will be announced by the H. B. Humiston Funeral Home in Kerhonkson.

Driver Is Released

Acting on information supplied by passing motorists, Kingston police at 3:50 p. m. Friday intercepted a trailer truck bearing a Canadian license which reportedly had struck an automobile near Kerhonkson and continued on without stopping. The driver, who said he was unaware that his truck had hit anything, was taken to the sheriff's office but was released when no one appeared to file a complaint, Sheriff George C. Smith said.

To Protest U. S. Attacks

London, July 2 (AP)—British Communists plan to march on the American embassy tomorrow to protest "attacks on civil liberties" of the people of the United States. A Hyde Park rally earlier and the march to the embassy—closed on Sunday—will be "for British independence from United States interference with our trade, our liberty, and our lives," the Community Daily Worker said in a six column advertisement calling for demonstrators to join the march.

Big Revenue Setback Sticks Country With Deficit Triple Of What Truman Predicted

Van Buren Warns On Safe July 4th; 30 Deaths Already

Kingston Joins in Program to Hold Down Accidents; Safety Council Says 290 Will Die

With the July 4 week-end already accounting for 30 lives throughout the United States, Police Chief Raymond Van Buren today announced that an extensive traffic safety program will be conducted here in connection with the three-day Fourth of July holiday celebration.

"Our enforcement program over the Fourth of July will bring Kingston into a united effort by cities and states throughout the nation to hold down the high holiday death toll which usually occurs over the Independence Day celebration," Chief Van Buren said. The nation-wide program is being coordinated by the National Safety Council.

According to the Associated Press, the Safety Council has estimated that 290 persons will be killed in traffic accidents over the three-day period. It made no estimate of the number that will be drawn or lose their lives in other violent accidents.

The toll over last year's three-day holiday period was more than 500, with nearly 800 traffic fatalities.

The police department urges everybody to take special precautions in an effort to "save both lives and property over the Fourth. It will be a time of great hazard because of the local week-end, the festive spirit of the holiday and the heavy holiday traffic," Van Buren added.

Chief Van Buren emphasized that motor travel will increase during the holiday celebration because the three-day week-end will tempt many summer vacationists to use it as the beginning of their regular vacation periods.

The National Safety Council expects some 35,000 cars to be on the highways during the holiday period.

"Let's all work together to make certain that death and disaster do not mar the holiday celebration of anybody in Kingston," Chief Van Buren said. "The Fourth of July should be a joyful and safe celebration of our nation's independence and it can be if everybody remembers to try and make it so."

Heavy Traffic Starts, No Accidents Today

Although holiday traffic was in full swing this morning, no serious accidents had been reported in Kingston or Ulster county up until noon today.

The sheriff's department reported a traffic jam at the south end of the Rondout Creek bridge about 10 a. m. and a deputy was assigned to traffic duty there.

Kingston police reported heavy traffic between the bridge and the East Chester street by-pass and Highland state police said traffic on 9W south of Kingston was also extremely heavy.

Only one exception was at Lake Katine state police barracks on 9W north of here, where traffic this morning was reported comparatively light. None of the police agencies reported any accidents.

Black Market Back

Shanghai, July 2 (AP)—The black market in U. S. dollars—never whipped by the Nationalists—has come back again to plague Shanghai's Communist regime. For the first time since strict enforcement was ordered last week on foreign currency dealings, U. S. dollars can be exchanged on the street for Communist currency, $1 U. S. buys 2,200 Communist dollars. The official rate is pegged at $1 to $1,800.

Ships Reach New York

New York, July 2 (AP)—Led by the 27,000-ton carrier Leyte, 13 warships of Task Force 60 steamed into the harbor today for an Independence Day week-end visit. The 45,000-ton carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt followed the Leyte in the early morning haze. These ships will be open to the public from 1 to 4 p. m. on Sunday and Monday.

No Freeman Monday

There will be no edition of The Kingston Daily Freeman on Monday, July 4, in observance of Independence Day.

Russian 'Lover' Will Be Heard Too; Sentence Could Add Up to 35 Years

Washington, July 2 (AP)—Judith Coplon, already under one sentence as a spy for Russia, now must wait the start of a second espionage trial.

Appellate Division Upholds Claim of Mrs. Frank Seaman

The claim of Mrs. Frank Seaman of Nanpanch to the sole ownership of a collection of old English china has been upheld by the Appellate Division, Third Department in a unanimous decision just handed down by that court.

Harry H. Flumming was attorney for the claimant-appellant, Mrs. Seaman, and Budd & Quisenberry of New York City and N. L. Van Haver were attorneys for the respondents.

The opinion for reversal of surrogate's court written by Associate Justice William F. Santry was as follows:

Frank Seaman died on the 25th day of March, 1939. He left him surviving his widow, Olive Brown Seaman, and two sons by a former marriage, Julian Seaman and Philip Seaman. The decedent left a last will and testament dated March 21, 1936, and two codicils thereto, one dated September 12, 1937, and the other dated May 2, 1938. The will and the two codicils were admitted to probate by the Surrogate of Ulster county on the 30th day of March 1939, and letters testamentary issued to Olive Brown Seaman and Julian Seaman, the executors named therein. The testator by the will and the first codicil placed all of his property in trust for various uses and purposes, and appointed his widow and his son Julian, trustees, with

1949 Fiscal Budget Shows Nation in Red $1,811,440,047 for 12 Months

Spending Up 18.5

Prospects Are That '50 Will Show Even More Debt, Say Experts

Washington, July 2 (AP)—A big government revenue setback stuck President Truman today with a 1949 fiscal year budget deficit of $1,811,440,047.68 — three times greater than the $600,000,000 he had predicted.

Because of the huge size of the federal money figures the President was off only 3.5 per cent in overestimating government income by $1,334,000,000 for the 12 months ended Thursday. Mr. Truman's estimates were made last January.

The President missed the spending figure only 3/10ths of 1 per cent, but it was enough to throw him off $123,000,000. Actual expenditures ran that much less than he'd counted, easing the effect of his revenue overestimate.

The key figures, given roundly in a year-end treasury compilation, were: Spending $40,037,000,000, up $6,286,000,000 over the preceding year and a new paccetima high; revenue $38,246,000,000, down $3,965,000,000 and at five-year low.

An 18.5 per cent rise in spending and a 9.4 percent drop in revenue converted the budget outcome from an unprecedented surplus of $8,419,000,000 in fiscal 1948 to a $1,811,000,000 deficit in the fiscal year just over.

This also sent the government bounding back into the familiar red after a two-year interval of living within its income for the only period in the last 20 years.

Byrd's Expert Forecast

Prospects point to an even greater excess of spending over revenue in fiscal 1950, just under way. A deficit estimate of $3,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000 has come both from Senator Byrd (D-Va.), a leading government finance, and from federal fiscal experts.

President Truman's forecast in January for fiscal 1950 was for an $875,000,000 deficit. But this is generally considered out of date and is scheduled for revision next month. Also, many congressmen are talking about passing some legislation ordering Mr. Truman to cut expenditures authorized by Congress.

Both the income tax cut voted by the 80th Congress last year and the economic downturn that got under way last fall played their parts in knocking tax receipts down from their year ago levels. Tax refunds surpassed presidential expectations.

Increases Listed

Expenditures, in comparison with last year, increased $1,886,000,000 for the military establishment; $409,000,000 for Veterans Administration costs; and $1,789,000,000 for the Commodity Credit Corporation outlays.

The European Cooperation Administration was an extra $4,041,000,000 in the expenditure column, but it was offset in part by decreases of $1,700,000,000 and $325,000,000 from the year before in two foreign aid items—the British loan and export-import bank costs, respectively.

The Commodity Credit Corporation outlays, chiefly for farm crop price supports, and Veterans Administration expenses were among those exceeding budget estimates.

Dittmar Will Move Business on July 5

The shoe business of George Dittmar, at 567 Broadway, will be moved July 5 to the former Oppenheimer jewelry store building, 578 Broadway and almost across from the present shoe store, its owner announced today.

The store is one of the several required to move because of the Broadway crossing elimination project.

The shoe business was started 60 years ago by Vincent Dittmar and has been conducted at its present location since 1895. Following the death in 1917 of Vincent Dittmar, it was operated by his son, George, the present owner.

Renovations are being made at the new store. It will be modernized and a new front will be built in the near future. It will be opened July 5, and its owner said "more complete line of Sundlin Shoes will be carried" because the new store is considerably larger than the other.

THE CAPETOWNConstruction Costs Kept Down in This House*Small Dwelling Has Essential Living Conveniences

Designed for the family which needs shelter immediately but which, because of present high construction costs, cannot build the type of house it would prefer to have in normal times, "The Capetown," today's offering from the Home of the Week Plan Service, provides good living conveniences and generous closet space, but can be erected for a comparatively small amount of money. Such a dwelling could be placed on a small lot, and it should have a good resale value later, if the owner decides to dispose of it and build a larger home.

Dining Room Omitted
In planning The Capetown economy has been kept definitely in mind. The house has no fireplace and no dining room. All the rooms are low studded and no provision has been made for a second story. Even gutters and downspouts have been omitted as a cost-cutting step.

Frame, concrete block or other masonry construction could be employed in the building of this cottage. Exterior walls may be finished with shingles, clapboards, tongue-and-grooved lumber or stucco. Within, wall finishes and lighting fixtures are simple and modestly priced. Insulation of the roof and side walls, however, will pay for itself in fuel saving and year-around comfort.

The overall dimensions are only 21x40 feet so the house can be built on a very narrow lot. Its cubage is only 11,900 feet. A car port could be added on either side of the house to shelter the family car, and would cost far less than a garage.

Front Door Into Living Room
The glazed front door opens directly into the 17x12-foot living room. Doors from the living room open into the kitchen and to a small rear hall area which connects with the bathroom and the two bedrooms at the rear. A linen closet and storage closet are in the hall.

The larger bedroom measures 12x10 1/2 feet and has two large closets. The other bedroom, 11x10 1/2 feet, has a single closet. Both bedrooms have windows on two exposures for cross ventilation.

The kitchen, 13x9 feet in size, is planned to accommodate a breakfast set under a window looking toward the front yard. A casement window is centered over the sink, and the working counter occupies one side wall. Additional counter and wall cupboard space fills the opposite wall beside the refrigerator. A broom closet is located near the stove.

The service entry opens from a stair landing two steps lower than the kitchen. Opposite this door are the stairs leading to the full basement. Complete plans and specifications for this "Home of the Week," or any other design of this series, are available at moderate cost. To ascertain the exact price of these documents, write to the Home Building Editor, The Kingston Daily Freeman, and enclose a self-addressed envelope bearing a 5-cent stamp. At least one week should be allowed for a reply.

(Released by the Home of the Week Plan Service, Providence 6, R. I.)

Owner Covered By 80% Clause

How much fire insurance should be carried has always puzzled the home owner. The problem is more acute now than ever before. Most homes are under-insured today because replacement costs have risen an estimated 80 per cent since 1939. In some cases, homes are insured for only the amount of the mortgage. This means the owner has no protection in case of loss.

To provide complete protection, fire underwriters have established what they call the "co-insurance clause." Under it, the owner agrees to maintain insurance equal to at least 80 per cent of the value and the company agrees to pay in full on any loss.

If less than 80 per cent is carried, the owner must bear a proportionate share of the loss. For example, if the property is valued at $10,000, the insured carries at least $8,000 and a $4,000 loss occurs, the company will pay the entire $4,000. But if only $6,000 insurance is carried on a $10,000 valuation, the company will pay only six-eighths, or $3,000, on a $4,000 loss.

Therefore, the wise property owner will have a careful appraisal and make sure that his fire policies cover at least 80 per cent of this value on both house and contents.

Get More Livability Without Added Cost

Without adding to their cost, the livability of houses is improved by locating the rooms in relation to sunlight, prevailing winds and view, all architects agree today.

The living room should have as much sunlight as possible and the best view should be from this room.

Since cooking increases warmth of the kitchen, this room should be placed away from the sun, on the north or northeast.

Since children and elderly people require maximum of warmth, their rooms are best located on the warm side of the house away from prevailing winds.

All rooms should be planned so they have a maximum of cross-ventilation.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JULY 2, 1949

The Kingston Daily Freeman will not be published Monday, July 4 in observance of Independence Day.

On the Fourth of July we celebrate the winning of independence as a nation. This day—in 1776—was the moment in history when a great enterprise founded on freedom was begun.

We Americans of the mid-20th century are the current custodians of those liberties born 173 years ago. We and our forefathers have seen them challenged by tyrannies that have come and gone in the world. We have guarded freedom well against these tests.

But the idea of tyranny dies hard. Crushed, it finds new forms and new tools and rises again. When it grows strong, it seeks to stifle liberty wherever it exists. For the heady draughts of free air are poisonous fumes to the tyrant.

Today tyranny is a subtle part of the world once more. In its new dress it is called communism. It has a strong weapon, a philosophy of government that professes to look toward a great, cooperative society welding the mass of men together.

Armed with this weapon, Communists have shrewdly muddled the world's thinking. They have made a starkly reactionary system appear progressive to some, thus trapping idealists, intellectuals and others easily drawn to the idea of cooperation.

Yet while extolling the glories of cooperative living, practicing Communists in Russia and other nations have ruthlessly stamped out liberty and real cooperation among peoples wherever they could.

Communist ideology is a hideous deception conceived to lure millions to the destruction of their freedoms. Communists have adopted the idea of cooperation only to debase it and corrupt it to their own tyrannical ends.

Not many Americans are deceived by this elaborate fraud. Some who are fooled are blinded to the realities by genuine grievances they nurse against our admittedly imperfect society. Feeling robbed of their American birthright, they unwittingly make themselves servants of a tyrant who, at a whim, would crush not only their liberties but their lives.

Independence Day is a good time to vow anew never to let this tyrant or any other set his cruel boot down on our soil. And to remember, too, that so long as we know him for what he is few of us are likely to welcome his coming. This one called a Communist we already know. Need there be any panic, then, when a few of his henchmen are unmasked?

RABBIT IN THE GARDEN
Along about this time of year the home gardener is quite likely to be chewing his nails over a row of chewed stalks in his prize patch, the unmistakable work of Brer Rabbit. What to do? Should he essay the well-nigh impossible task of building a rabbit-proof fence, set a trap, or lie in wait with a shotgun?

The gardener who lives in an urban area in non-rabbit country is lucky from this point of view. A call to the game warden or a sportsmen's club will bring someone around with traps and the skill to set them, for the rabbits are wanted for stocking the fields for next fall's sport. But the gardener where rabbits are plentiful will try his own remedies, and finally will probably plant an extra row or two for the rabbits and forget it.

THE DEPENDENT MOTORIST
When the heat around the house becomes unbearable, a familiar remedy for those fortunate enough to have a family car is to get into it and cool off with a short spin. On a recent hot Sunday afternoon in the vicinity of New York City, the heat proved too much for some of the machines as well as for humans, and many cars stalled. Enterprising youngsters with cold water for hot engines were reported getting as much as $2 a bucket for the stuff.

BIRTHDAY OF A NATION
Independence Day has been variously celebrated depending upon the times and the public attitude toward our national existence. What July 4th marks is the declaration of independence of the thirteen colonies in North America from Great Britain. Before independence could be established, two wars had to be fought. The Revolutionary War and the War of 1812. National organization followed hard upon the Revolutionary War, first by means of the inadequate articles of confederation and finally by means of the constitution, a document of law which still governs us 162 years later.

More declarations of independence and even effective constitutions do not establish national groups. The prime requisite is a homogeneity of sentiment, a binding tradition, a moral force sufficiently potent to guide a people through trying times as well as during the effervescence of prosperity and enthusiasm. A nation lives by its faith.

In a word, national existence that is not more than the politics of a self-governing state is not enough to drive a people forward to conquer a continent, to clear its forests, to cross its deserts, to provide homes and workshops, farms and mines, a multitude of occupations for a hundred and a half million people. Political independence alone will not do that. It is not a sufficient answer to the historic puzzle of America.

For the United States is a historic puzzle. To this continent, for nearly three centuries and a half, men of all races have migrated. No one had to come here. No one was forced to come here. Curiously, most who did come escaped from some dissatisfaction, disappointment, disillusionment. Poverty, hunger, fear, inequality, oppression, bigotry—these sent to America millions from every land and here they found what they sought most, freedom to live their own lives as they chose.

There is, of course, one exceptional group, the Negroes from Africa, who were transported to these shores in the course of a world-wide slave trade and whose amelioration has been slow and whose opportunities have been limited. Yet, nowhere upon this earth, where the Negro lives in large numbers, is his condition as favorable, economically, socially or politically as in the United States today. There is no country in Africa or Europe, where there is any concentration of Negro population, where his standard of living is equal to that which he enjoys in this country.

Granting this exception, one marvels at the vast divergence of habits, customs, languages, religions, traditions which joined together in producing the American mosaic. The melting pot once spoke of this country as the melting pot and that too of repeated phrases somehow implies the fusion of the end product as a sort of chop suey—all kinds of things thrown together to make a palatable, if not delectable, dish.

A more accurate analogy would be the symphony orchestra, where a large number of different personalities of variegated habits and temperaments play upon numerous and even antagonistic instruments, often in what seem to be opposite directions, in discord and dissonance, and yet it comes the heavenly music that thrills us with its majestic beauty. That is the United States of America.

And that has become a distinctive civilization. For its emphasis on the rights of the individual—the inalienable rights of the individual by grace of God—has produced a people who, while they treasure their differences, their personal independence, their personal dignity, do manage to cooperate under a government of their own choosing. The chaplains corps of the United States Navy lit upon the spirit of the nation in their slogan: "Cooperation without compromise."

On this Fourth of July, it would seem that we need more than ever to think in terms of the American tradition and the American civilization, for we are a people apart, different from all others on this earth, today finding our way of life justified more than ever by the evidence of our peaceful carry on our strength the burdens of those who need help, and find it only among us. That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

REMOVING INFECTED TONSILS
When we learned that the appendix did no particular work in the body, that it was the remains of some structure that was needed earlier in man's development, some men underwent removal of the appendix even when no inflammation (appendicitis) was present. This can be understood in cases of engineers, explorers or others going to distant lands in which physicians are not available.

Unfortunately, because the appendix had no known use, many thought that the tonsils had no known use, and as infected tonsils caused rheumatic fever and rheumatic fever caused heart disease, it would be wise for parents to have their children's tonsils removed even if no enlargement or inflammation were present. It was not unusual therefore some years ago to see groups of children attending a nearby hospital clinic for the removal of tonsils. They were snored out in those days, not carefully removed as at present.

As a matter of fact the tonsils have a very important job as they lie in their places at the back of the throat. Nature placed tonsils in the throat to act as filters to the blood circulating in this important part of the body.

Tonsils have the power of drawing harmful organisms and their products out of the blood and thus preventing disease in other parts of the body. Thus, during the years of childhood, despite the number of cases of children's diseases, those occurring, the tonsils prevent these diseases or render them less able to do permanent damage. This ability to prevent or lessen the effects of disease lasts until the boy or girl reaches well into their teens, after which the tonsils in most cases disappear.

The question naturally arises as to whether tonsils should ever be removed as long as they act as filters to remove poison from the blood. Today physicians and surgeons are agreed that because tonsils are filters, they may contain so much poison that some of this poison is gathered up by the blood and carried to the heart and other organs. Just as the filter on your water tap can get filled with dirt and other harmful material, so also should tonsils be removed once they are no longer useful as filters.

torist who used to sally forth on the highways prepared for almost any emergency, from a faulty ignition system to an empty radiator or gas tank? Perhaps the modern service station has destroyed him. The modern luxurious "last-word" auto has no set of cans for a spare supply of oil, gasoline and water, and the tool box has given way to a kit barely equal to the task of changing a tire. The motorist has become dependent on the roadside service station.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearce

Washington—A few months ago any move to scale down the 70-group air force would have brought howls of anguish from Congress and certain air force advocates.

But it is indicative of the improved harmony slowly settling down over the three warring armed services, that Secretary of Defense Johnson has quietly decreed a 48-group air force—and it did not cause a ripple.

Johnson first broke the news to the joint chiefs of staff in an off-the-record session. Briefly and succinctly he explained that the original 70-group force had been based on using the B-50 and the B-29, which were cheaper planes and which the joint chiefs of staff now had declared outmoded. In favor of the B-36. But the B-36, Johnson continued, is a much more expensive plane, and to build 70 air groups it would cost the military budget from $14,780,000,000 up to $17,000,000,000.

Furthermore, Johnson said that building too many B-36's now would probably mean they would be out-of-date two or three years hence. Therefore, he proposed spreading the building program over a longer period.

Finally, he pointed out that if war should come, production could be stepped up in a relatively short time.

Johnson's presentation was brief, to the point and positive. He left no doubt in the minds of the military men who listened to him that he had made up his mind.

Later that day Johnson made the same presentation to a secret session of the Senate Armed Services Committee. They also accepted the plan without argument. Some experts, incidentally, figure the proposed 48 groups at 54 groups.

Next Generation
I do not know whether Alger Hiss was ever guilty of being a Communist, but I do know that a lot of youngsters turned out by the schools and colleges in the depression years of around his time were discouraged and disillusioned.

Depression breeds discouragement. And the more the youngsters pounded the pavements, the easier prey they became for the rabble-rousers and the soap-buffers.

That is why it is so important to give openings to the 1,600,000 youngsters graduated from high schools and colleges last month—70 per cent of which college graduates being veterans.

That is also why the step taken by William Fulton Kurtz, head of the Pennsylvania Company of Philadelphia, is so important. Kurtz wrote to every firm doing business with his bank, urging that they give openings to these youngsters.

"These young people," he said, "are the foundation stones upon which this country must build. I sincerely urge that you make the employment of as many as you can, your own personal project. This will be good for you and me, good for them and good for the nation."

Meyers' irregularities during the war and published on December 1, 1942, a charge that Meyers was practicing deliberate deception regarding airplane production figures. The charge, if untrue, would have been libelous; however, it was made only after careful checking.

The anonymous letter received by the F.B.I. could not be checked by the F.B.I. without permission from the Army since its own inspector general has jurisdiction over military personnel. That was why Hoover sent the letter to General Arnold.

Note 1—Perhaps the solution for F.B.I. files is to have two sets: 1) strictly confidential and containing unchecked data never to be made public; 2) a set of evaluated files, containing carefully checked data, known to be true, which could be produced in court.

Note 2—On another point, Hoover says: "Some of my friends in Congress think they are fattening me by proposing that the F.B.I. be constituted as a separate agency. I do not agree. The F.B.I. is an investigating agency for the Justice Department, which is the prosecuting agency. The two must work together, and thus cannot be divorced."

Getting Johnson's Number
Secretary of Defense Johnson doesn't make a habit of giving his private phone number to ladies, but he made an exception recently with Alice Johnson of the Seattle Times.

Because Alice did a take-off on the new defense chief at a women's press party, he jokingly gave her his private number at the Pentagon building.

A few weeks later, Alice needed to confirm a story in a hurry and dialed the secret number. The secretary of defense answered personally.

"How the hell did you get this number?" he thundered. Miss Johnson reminded Secretary Johnson that he himself had given it to her.

He laughed, apologized, and told her to call him any time.

The Diplomatic Pouch
The British are hopping mad at Chairman Lilienthal of the Atomic Energy Commission for refusing to inform them of the latest A-bomb developments. The British think they are entitled to all bomb information since they helped develop it. But Lilienthal is keeping the most sensational inventions close to his chest for fear of leaks to the Russians.

Pan American Airways plans to cut the round-trip cost of a plane flight to London from $750 to $440 this fall following its merger with American Overseas Airlines, bringing the cost of over-the-ocean plane travel to an all-time low.

Leaves for Europe

Washington, July 2 (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Snyder leaves today by plane (about 11 a. m. E.S.T.) for a tour of western European capitals. New York, July 2 (AP)—A young American housewife has given up her pots and pans to try her luck with the matador's sword. She's on her way to Spain, Mrs. Edith Laurie-Entin, 21, of New York, left yesterday by plane for Paris. She said she decided on the trip to "learn what I could about bull fighting in a month."

12th Ward Woman Backs Project for More Homes There

Among congratulatory messages on the Fourth Ward postal card plan to increase homes in Kingston was one from the 12th Ward, the proposed site for state housing project.

A former supervisor of the Fourth, Joe Kelly, who sent the cards through the ward for the approval, was signed Mrs. Frank Rudy.

It said: "Congratulations. It's time for Kingston to take a definite stand on housing. My husband is not a veteran (too old), but in building for veterans perhaps there would be a chance for the older to live in a house instead of a hotel, and rear their children in a better environment. Thanks again, Sincerely, Mrs. Frank Rudy, 12th Ward."

Another message said: "I do not live in your ward, but I take this opportunity to say that I am heartily in favor of the 12th Ward Housing. Kingston needs it desperately. Let's forget politics and consider our more unfortunate neighbors. Mrs. Helen E. Schoonmaker, 203 West Chestnut street."

Kelly remarked that he had heard many old comments favoring the post card plan which he pointed out caused displeasure on the part of Alderman John Bulbaitz, who opposed the 12th Ward Housing Project in the Common Council.

"I read from the 12th Ward, and conversations I've had with other residents of the section indicates that not everybody up town is against the project," said Kelly. "Maybe the post card method might be a good guide for Alderman James Martin," he said. "Martin, a Republican, and the six Democratic aldermen in the Common Council have been opposing the 12th Ward Housing Project."

Judges Battle

Hartford, Conn., July 2 (AP)—Democratic and Republican judges contested today for the right to hold court in Connecticut towns and cities. The resulting legal tangle, all agreed, was something that only the State Supreme Court could untangle. The situation arose because C.O.P. judges already on the bench contended that Governor Chester Bowles had no right to displace them. The Democratic chief executive's choices for the state's 69 municipal courts appeared yesterday to claim their offices.

Asks Aid Slash

Washington, July 2 (AP)—Senator McKellar (D-Tenn.) today renewed his demand for a sharp cut in European recovery spending. He said he will ask the Senate Appropriations Committee heads to approve a $800,000,000 slash.

Georgi Dimitrov

The Reichstag building in Berlin burned the night of Feb. 27, 1933, put the blame on Communists. Dimitrov confounded his judges and eventually was acquitted. The fire mystery never was cleared up. Hitler's gang was accused by anti-Nazi sources of setting the fire and trumping up charges against the Communists to serve their own purposes. Dimitrov went to Moscow.

From then on Dimitrov was known to the world. He became general secretary of the old Comintern, the Communist international network, in 1935, and stayed on the job until the Comintern was disbanded in 1943.

After the war, Dimitrov returned to his native country and became premier with the blessing of Russia in 1946. His police regime was called the "Iron Broom" by his enemies.

Using the old Comintern tactics, Dimitrov became a spearhead of the new Cominform attacks that isolated and lambasted a neighbor Communist ruler, Premier Marshall Tito of Yugoslavia. He fought the Marshall Plan with all his waning strength.

Dimitrov was born June 18, 1892, at Kovachevtsi, near Sofia. His work early in revolutionary tendencies was jailed a year and a half for inciting disobedience among Bulgarian soldiers who were siding with Germany against Russia in the first world war.

He made his way to Russia in 1920 for the third congress of the Comintern and, after meeting Stalin and Lenin, was made a member of the executive committee.

There, especially as I will be out of the whole atmosphere of this loyalty-oath-ridden town," she said in her farewell courtroom speech here.

With the trial finally over, Attorney General Clark issued a statement saying he had had no "quarrel" and no "feud" with F.B.I. Director J. Edgar Hoover and that there has been no "resignation" by Hoover.

Rumors to that effect grew out of introducing in evidence, at the trial, defense insistence, 30 confidential F.B.I. reports relating to internal security matters and to suspected espionage agents.

Clark said this resulted "in some clamor for an investigation of the F.B.I." He added, "I have complete confidence in J. Edgar Hoover."

DePaoli, a former Justice Department analyst, was convicted on a two-count indictment of stealing secrets from Justice Department files, intending to turn them over to Gubichev, a Russian engineer attached to the United Nations staff. They are jointly accused of espionage conspiracy in the New York indictment.

DePaoli Reports

wallet contained a Coast Guard pass, motor vehicle registration, driver's license and one silver dollar, DePaoli said.

In front of him in line, as being between 55 and 60 years old, five feet seven inches tall and weighing about 130 pounds. He was wearing a black suit coat and straw hat, DePaoli said.

The woman, a redhead, was about 30, five feet six inches and 120 pounds and was wearing a mixed colored suit. He last saw the woman at the bus terminal across Broadway from the post office, DePaoli reported.

The woman, he said, had stood behind him in the line, but he had noticed that she had apparently been in the company of the man previously.

Big Revenue . . .

The E.C.A. cost less than Mr. Truman had contemplated in January.

No Phony Resume
All figures reported by Treasury Secretary Snyder counted in full all outlays on foreign aid, though an act of the 80th Congress would have justified him in ignoring $3,000,000,000 of that spending on the 1949 books and claiming a technical surplus of $1,188,000,000 for the year.

Snyder passed up that chance, scoring even a mention of it. In the past, both he and President Truman have blasted the provision as a "phony bookkeeping" device.

Ministers Study

London, July 2 (AP)—Russian arguments stymied the four-power foreign ministers trying to write an independence treaty for Austria yesterday. The ministers decided to take the week-end off to study Soviet demands for guarantees on the rights of Slovene and Croat minorities in Austria. Yugoslavia has been asking that certain areas inhabited by these people be annexed to her territory.

executors to "turn over and deliver to Olive Brown Seaman the property devised and bequeathed to her for the term of her natural life" and to turn over and deliver the balance of the property to the trustees. On the 16th day of July, 1942, a decree of judicial settlement of the accounts of the trustees up to the date of the death of Julian Seaman was made and entered.

The proceeding involved in this appeal was instituted by the filing of a petition and account on the 17th day of August, 1946. The petition was executed by Olive Brown Seaman and Philip Seaman as testamentary trustees. In it the petitioners ask for a judicial settlement of their accounts from the date of the previous decree of settlement. They also set forth therein that a question has arisen as to the meaning and effect of said article first of the second codicil to the decedent's will, and a further question has been raised as to whether any of the property purported to be described in said article first is owned absolutely by Olive Brown Seaman individually. The petitioners ask for a construction of said article first and a determination of the ownership of said property. Answers were filed by Olive Brown Seaman and Philip Seaman individually, and by the children of Philip Seaman. The issues raised by the pleadings, so far as material here, involve a construction of said article first and a determination as to whether a collection of old English china which was housed at The Hut at the time of decedent's death was owned by Olive Brown Seaman absolutely, or was owned by the testator.

After hearing the parties and receiving evidence the surrogate rendered his decision in which he construed said article first to mean that Olive Brown Seaman has a legal life estate in the real and personal property devised and bequeathed in said article, and that said Julian Seaman having died, said Philip Seaman, his absolute vested remainder in said real and personal property, to take effect in possession at the termination of said life estate. The surrogate further decided that Olive Brown Seaman was stopped from claiming ownership of the collection of old china because said china had been included in the assets of the estate of the decedent on the transfer tax proceedings, and that the executor of the estate, and as she had participated in those proceedings and was a party thereto, she was bound by the decrees made in the premises, and in conformity with this holding the surrogate determined that said article first applied to the old china and created a life estate therein in Olive Brown Seaman, with the remainder to Philip Seaman. Having decided that the widow was estopped from asserting a claim to the china, the surrogate did not consider on the merits the question of the ownership of the china. Olive Brown Seaman appeals on the law and the facts from the decree and seeks a review of the findings on which it is based, and of the refusal of the surrogate to find that the appellant is the owner in her own right of the china.

The statute, every decree of a surrogate's court is conclusive as to all matters embraced therein against every person of whom jurisdiction was obtained, and a decree of judicial settlement of the account of an executor or testamentary trustee is conclusive evidence against all of the parties of whom jurisdiction was obtained as to all matters embraced in the account and decree. (§§ 80, 274, Surrogate's Ct. Act.) On the other hand, the effect of such a decree is limited in its operation to the matters actually before the court. It has no effect on matters not considered or passed on in the proceeding in which the decree was made. (Van Rensselaer v. Van Rensselaer, et al., 113 N. Y. 207; Matter of Seitz, 149 Misc. 526; Medediff v. First Trust Co. of Albany, 260 App. Div. 517; Joseph v. Herzog, 198 N. Y. 456.) The vital question presented on this appeal is whether the ownership of the old china was actually before the court in any or all of the previous proceedings. The surrogate has found that it was. With this conclusion we do not agree. Nowhere in the previous decrees nor in the petitions or accounts on which such decrees were based nor in the transfer tax affidavits or proceedings, except in a single instance to which reference will be made later, does the word "china" appear. Neither is there any reference to this china or to the ownership thereof, either directly or indirectly, in any of the previous decrees. Nowhere was the court asked to pass upon the question of ownership of any petition, account, or otherwise.

It is claimed inferentially that the china was included in the transfer tax affidavits and in the previous accounts because the total of an item of $25,584.50 set forth therein and designated as "Real property known as The Hut, together with the personal property therein contained, as appraised and inventoried," equaled the sum of $10,000.00, the appraised value of the real estate, plus the sum of $5,380.50, the appraised value of furnishings, personal effects and non-income producing property in The Hut, and plus $10,302.00, the appraised value of the china collection. Solely on the basis of this breakdown of figures and because the appellant signed the affidavits and accounts containing this item, the surrogate held that the china was included among the assets of the estate, and the appellant, by her participation in the proceedings was barred from asserting ownership to the china.

At the time of decedent's death the collection of china, consisting of over a thousand pieces, was housed in a room in The Hut, which was a residence owned by the decedent and occupied by him and the appellant. Shortly after the death of the testator, the appellant notified the attorney who was acting for her and Julian Seaman as executors, that she owned the china. This attorney arranged with Samuel Marx, Inc., to make an appraisal of the personal property of the estate, and notified the appellant by letter that Marx would make an inventory and appraisal of the personal property, exclusive of the china, belonging to the estate. Marx made a detailed inventory and appraisal of the personal property belonging to the estate. The total appraised value was $5,380.50. The appellant testified that the attorney, for the executors told her that Marx would make an inventory and appraisal of the china collection for her without cost and suggested that she have it done, to which she consented. The attorney testified that he did not recall this conversation, but the appellant's statement is not otherwise questioned. Marx made an inventory and appraisal of the china collection, and the total appraised value thereof was $10,302.00.

In the transfer tax depositions the executors, in the schedule of other miscellaneous property, set out the following item: "Furnishings, personal effects and miscellaneous non-income producing personal property as per appraisal of Samuel Marx, Inc., hereto annexed, marked Exhibit 'B', $15,682.50." The Exhibit B annexed to the deposition was the Marx appraisal of personal property, exclusive of the china collection, amounting to $5,380.50. No inventory of or reference to the china collection is found in the papers on file in the office of the surrogate. The findings of the surrogate for the final judicial settlement of the accounts of the executors, the account as originally filed did not contain any statement relative to The Hut or the personal property therein, but in a supplemental affidavit the following item is listed as property received by the executors as principal: "Real Property known as The Hut parcel, together with the personal property therein, as appraised and inventoried, $25,584.50." The amount had been reduced by $98.00 to correct a conceded error. Both executors signed the affidavit at the end of the account, and both verified it. Below the signature of the executor, Julian Seaman, were written in long hand these words: "Without prejudice to Estate's ownership of china collection." It is not clear from the record who wrote this statement, but the appellant testified that they were written at the time the executor of the affidavit, and that her claim of ownership of the china was under discussion at that time. The decree settled the account, as filed and directed the executors to turn over to Olive Brown Seaman the property devised and bequeathed to her for the term of her life, and to Philip Seaman, with the remainder to Philip Seaman. Having decided that the widow was estopped from asserting a claim to the china, the surrogate did not consider on the merits the question of the ownership of the china. Olive Brown Seaman appeals on the law and the facts from the decree and seeks a review of the findings on which it is based, and of the refusal of the surrogate to find that the appellant is the owner in her own right of the china.

The contention that the china was included as an asset of the estate in any of the previous proceedings is supported only by a deduction based on sheer speculation. That the value of the china was added to the inventory and to the value of the real estate, to make the total of $25,584.50 seems likely. But this could have come about through the error of some clerk in the attorney's office, engaged in working on the transfer tax appraisal affidavit who thought both of the Marx appraisals pertained to assets of the estate and put both totals in the summary. Many theories could be advanced, but the most reasonable conclusion is that this was the result of somebody's early error, which was copied in succeeding accounts. The statement, "Without prejudice to the Estate's ownership of china collection," written above the signature of Julian Seaman, was an admission by that executor that the china collection was not included in the account as an asset of the estate, and that he did not want that fact to jeopardize the right of the estate to later assert a claim, if it so desired.

Matters embraced in a decree and in the account on which such decree is based include only those matters which are clearly and specifically set out and which can be definitely ascertained from reading of the account and decree. Matters not thus set out can not be written in by deduction based on speculation. The ownership of the china in question was not a matter which was embraced in any of the previous proceedings, and the appellant is not estopped from asserting such ownership now.

The evidence produced upon the trial is sufficient to establish the appellant's claim to the ownership of the china collection. Without commenting at length upon the evidence, it is sufficient to point out that it was established that the appellant had personally collected the china in question, starting when she was a child; that the collection was substantially completed by about 1909; that in 1910 the testator executed and delivered to the appellant a writing which read as follows:

"Private Office
FRANK SEAMAN
34 West 33rd Street
New York

For one dollar & other valuable consideration I hereby assign to Mrs. Olive Brown Seaman any & all interest I may have in the old china collection known as the 'China' collection, N. Y. & hope when she has done with it she will give it to my son Julian.

Frank Seaman
N. Y. Jun 2-1910.

That in 1910 the appellant and the testator has not yet married, and her name was Sarre; that during his lifetime the testator acknowledged on one or more occasions that the china belonged to the appellant. There was no evidence on behalf of the respondents. On the trial the appellant produced the 1910 assignment on demand of the respondents, who had it marked as an exhibit. She was then allowed on cross-examination to testify over objection as to the signature of the testator, the delivery of the writing and the remarks of the testimony at the time of the delivery. The respondents claim that the appellant was not competent to give this testimony under 1347 of the Civil Practice Act. Even assuming this to be true, the document was properly put in evidence on the independent testimony of two competent witnesses who established the signature of the testator. The appellant is entitled to findings of fact in conformity with the foregoing, and such findings are so made. The appellant is entitled to a decree determining that she is the absolute owner of the china collection.

The surrogate, correctly construed article first of the second codicil insofar as he held that it created a legal life estate in Olive Brown Seaman in the real estate devised and in such personal property as was owned by the testator and located in The Hut at the time of his death, and that it created an absolute vested remainder in Philip Seaman in such property, to take effect in possession at the termination of the life estate. He was in error in holding that any interest in said china collection passed under said codicil, or that the title or ownership of such collection was, in any way affected thereby, and the decree insofar as it provides, should be reversed. The respondents contend that the appellant is barred from claiming ownership of the china by the Statute of Limitations, as set forth under § 209 of the Surrogate's Court Act, the statute begins to run against an executor from the first judicial settlement of his account as to any debt due him from the decedent, or cause of action in his favor against the estate. This contention is untenable. The appellant was the absolute owner of this china and it was in her possession. She was under no duty to take any proceeding or action at law to establish her rights. If the estate claimed an interest in this property it was incumbent on the estate to institute proceedings, not upon the appellant. As a matter of fact, this proceeding was instituted by the representatives of the estate, who requested in their petition a construction of the codicil and a determination of the ownership of the china. The appellant is defending her title to the china. If the statute has run against anybody, it has run against the estate.

The decree and findings should be reversed and modified as indicated herein, and the matter remitted to the Surrogate's Court to enter a decree in accordance with this opinion, with costs to the appellant.

"Today, over a billion dollars a year is being spent by national advertisers to build and maintain consumer acceptance for their products. If our Constitution and our Bill of Rights are lost, the good will of those companies and the good will of the products which they have sold will be worthless. But if advertisers will re-sell to the American people our Constitution and our Bill of Rights, re-establish consumer demand and full consumer acceptance of the principles of our Constitution, re-awaken men and women to the spiritual value of this great document, then the products which they are selling and have sold will remain sold. Colonial Roundup

(By The Associated Press)
Colonial League bats worked overtime yesterday at Waterbury Bridgeport and Stamford posted victories. Each winning team clinched the verdict with one big inning.

At Bridgeport, the Bristol Owls got away to a 3-0 lead over the Bees in an afternoon game, but Bridgeport bounced back with six runs in 1947. Major: wallop of the big story in a 7-4 Bridgeport victory. George Handy, Bridgeport's Negro second baseman, drove in two of the runs with a single, running his consecutive hitting streak to 21 games, one behind the league record which was established by Alex Korpány of Poughkeepsie in 1947. Major wallop of the big inning was a three-run homer by Arky Arkelian. Stamford clubbed four Poughkeepsie pitchers for 18 hits in piling up a 10-2 victory. Emil Moscovitz, former New York Yankee batting practice pitcher, spaced five Poughkeepsie hits nicely in posting his ninth victory of the season. He has lost three.
